

THE MISSISSIPPI EXPLOSION.

An addition to the list of casualties fourteen killed and ten wounded.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., March 25.—From survivors of the found boat Crescent City disaster who arrived here this morning on the steamer Phil Allen, the following additional particulars of the disaster are obtained:

Wm. Briggs, the first engineer, who was on watch at the time of the explosion says that he was at welding a fire hook. He was knocked down by the concussion, though he heard no unusual noise. On regaining his feet he started forward, but was stopped by the steam. A moment afterward he found he was standing in the water, and, realizing the danger, ran up stairs, closely followed by the water. Within three minutes after the explosion he had reached the deck, only to find the roof above water, on which the survivors were huddled until relieved by the Phil Allen's crew.

The engineer says that at the time of the explosion the boat was carrying 100 barrels of steam, and five hundred bags of coal. He can give neither as to the cause of the explosion. The steamer had five barges in tow, containing 500 tons of coal, 600 tons of iron, and about 200 tons of queenware, all of which was lost.

The following additional information was gathered from Wm. Dunn, a steamship man, and Mr. Dunn, second cook of Wheeling, who on the Phil Allen, Clarence Adair, of Cairo, cabin boy John D. Rice, R. A. Adkins at Cincinnati, and John J. Walker, of Louisville, the charred remains were lost. The additional wounded are James Brewster, cabin boy, who was in the hold near the engine room; Wm. Walker, from St. Louis, cut in the head; Thomas McLean, roustabout from Memphis, shoulder fracture; Lizzie Ross, charwoman, from New Orleans; and Wm. Allen, head lad, son of the proprietor of the trading post of Davenport. It was very difficult to identify him, as he was completely blackened, and his clothes were all torn about the chest. This makes 14 killed and 10 wounded. Twenty-three persons were unharmed. The survivors speak in the highest terms of the treatment given them by the officers and crew of the Phil Allen. None of the bodies of the killed were recovered.
